

The Family Pathways Framework is a guide that outlines three primary paths through which families receive services from Family Resource Centers, each with increasing intensity of service provision and required data tracking.

General Services Path

Center Services Path

Family Development Path

General Services Path

Individuals receive referrals and brief assistance from the Family Resource Center.

Individuals on this path might receive:

- Phone/walk-in information/referrals to another organization
- Non-cash assistance (clothing, food)

Data tracking

Family Resource Center staff tally the number of individuals who receive general services and data is reported on an aggregate level.

Center Services Path

Individuals participate in programs and services at the Family Resource Center.

Individuals on this path might:

- Participate in parenting education programs; life skills, job training or education classes; or health insurance enrollment.
- Receive financial emergency assistance such as housing, utility, or medical aid.

Data tracking

Required demographic and screening questions, program attendance, referrals, and other services.

Family Development Path

Families actively work with a family development worker at the Family Resource Center, setting goals, and using assessments to track family progress towards their goals.

Families receive family development work and coordinated case management and might participate in other General or Center services as well.

Data tracking

Required demographic and screening questions, The Colorado Family Support Assessment 2.0 (CFSa 2.0), referrals, and goal progress.
